NOTICE. WE have heard that some Foreign Merchant, wanted to procure several hundred hats of Rice Paper from the Wo Cheong shop of Canton; and that afterwards a Hoy in Hongkong has got the job, pretending that he will get them made by the Wo Cheong shop; but he only got a pattern from our shop with the name stamped on it, through the hand of Hyat Puy, an assistant Compradore of BOURJAU & Co., and got them made in Hongkong after the pattern; falsifying that they are made by our shop. Now the Merchant who has engaged a Hoy to procure the hats, must know that himself is deceived, and had better examine the hats before they are packed up, for if a Hoy can make good hats, why should he falsify the name of Wo Cheong? We have no desire of getting the work, but are afraid of spoiling our name, therefore we are obliged to make it known. If any merchant wants good hats, let him come to Canton and apply to the Tung Cheong shop on the Honan side, then he will make no mistake. WO CHEONG, of Canton. Hongkong, March 23, 1868.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS & OINTMENT. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. THIS Medicine is universally admitted to be the most efficacious remedy known to the world. No preparation is so suitable to the climates of India and China as this fine and invigorating medicine. It is particularly adapted to the constitution of European ladies, as it is never failing in its effects in all diseases peculiar to females, while those who are attenuated by the debilitating effects of the above climates will find in this wonderful remedy a kind of talisman whereby they may insure a restoration to robust health. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. The science of Medicine has never before produced any remedy that can be compared to this wonderful Ointment, as it cures after all other means have failed, all wounds, sores, ulcers, and also the most inveterate skin diseases peculiar to the climates of India and China. It is the true friend of the Soldier and Civilian, as certain old sores can be removed by it that cannot be conquered by any other treatment. Hongkong, February 1, 1867.

KONIGLICH PREUSSISCHES CONSULAT. HONGKONG, DEN 9TEN MARZ, 1868.

DIE nachstehende Bekanntmachung des Königlich Preussischen Consuls zu Japan wird hiernächst zur Kunde der preussischen Unterthanen und Schutzgenossen gebracht. J. MENKE, Stellvertreter des Consuls.

BEKANTMACHUNG. Da nach officiellen Nachrichten in Japan der Krieg zwischen Seiner Majestät dem Mikado und dem Taikuhn ausgebrochen ist, und die Beobachtung strenger Neutralität dadurch notwendig wird, so macht der Unterzeichnete Geschäftsträger Seiner Majestät des Königs von Preussen in Japan die preussischen Unterthanen und Schutzgenossen darauf aufmerksam, dass eine Betheiligung an dem Kriege, selbst in der Eigenschaft als Nicht-Combattant, die Zuführung von Kriegs- und Transportschiffen, die Zuführung und Beförderung von Militärpersonen, Depeschen und zur Kriegszwecke gehörigen Gegenständen in preussischen Kauffahrtschiffen für irgend einen der beiden Theile nach den Grundsätzen des Völkerrechts eine Verletzung der Neutralität in sich schliesst und als feindseliges Verhalten betrachtet werden können. Die im Militärdienste befindlichen Personen können daher nach Kriegsgebrauch behandelt werden, während die Schiffe und sonstigen Transportmittel der Wagnahme und Confiscation unterliegen, welche auch auf die Uebrig, etwa vorhandene, Neutralitätsgelände ausgedehnt werden können. Jette Verletzung der Neutralität durch preussische Unterthanen und Schiffe würde dieselben ausserhalb der Gefahr aussetzen, ihrer Ansprüche auf den Schutz der Königlich Preussischen Regierung sowie auf die in dem preussisch-japanischen Verträge garantirten Rechte und Privilegien verlustig zu gehen. Hiogo, Kohé, den 18ten Februar, 1868. Der Königlich Geschäftsträger. (gez.) VON BRANDT.

THE CHINA MAIL.

continues to prevail with unabated vigour on both sides. A few days ago, no firing did the combatants, that no less than 40 of the battalions were left dead on the battle-field. Occasionally the booming of artillery is so incessant as to prove as annoying to us, as the firing of salutes appears to be, according to recent articles in your valuable paper, to the good people in the neighbourhood. A worthy gentleman, belonging to one of the small towns, for many years past has honourably filled a responsible position amongst us, leading to day, together with his amiable family. I am sure that it is the desire of every resident of this port, that good fortune may attend them whithersoever they go.

CANTON.

OUR CANTON correspondent writes:—The Linguists of the Custom house sent round a Circular to-day (Saturday) presenting therein in their "compliments to the ladies and gentlemen residing in Canton, and requesting the honour of their company at the Annual Club in Canton, to witness the display of Chinese fireworks at Kowloon men." The club was, consequently, pretty well honoured with the presence of "Judge and gentlemen," forming an interestingly mixed collection as to the nationalities of the assembled, who have thereby signified their appreciation of the public spiritedness of the members of the institution. According to the honored custom, this annual celebration of the Chinese New Year is observed with a grand display used to take place at Pak-tai-men, but this year the locality has been changed to the above-mentioned ship in consequence of its having been the heterodox ma-tou, by the circumstance of the horse-coolie, who mortally wounded Doss Mahomed with a carving knife, being beheaded there. For fireworks, as a rule, are intended to drive away evil spirits, and it was therefore deemed highly advisable that the ship should derive at this anniversary the benefit from the burning of fire crackers, whizzing of rockets, and illuminative exhibitions of effluvia, or in other words the ghost of Pong Lue Shan may be driven away from Koon Lung.

The Magistrate belonging to the Poonchong district, it is reported, has been dismissed, since he has failed to apprehend the ladrones who robbed the pawn-shop. It is also stated that a similar fate awaits the Magistrate belonging to the Nannoh's district, who has failed to capture the ladrones, who so unceremoniously deprived him of his services the other day with considerable cash. At once allowed them; but, when money had been paid, he waited until the agent of the pawn-shop came to him. He then informed the Court that the man Along (who, it is alleged, enticed the men on board) could not be found, although the case was adjourned on the 17th in order that he might be arrested. The inspector failed to find him, and the case was adjourned to the 22nd. The agent, unsatisfied, and vexed not to find their pressing wants, be not apprehended. Just fancy your Mr May incalculable to the streets the rowdy elements and to would feed the masses a civil war. Indeed the streets of Canton are not the safe boulevards which they were taken to be during the terror-striking governorship of Cheong Yee Li. Rowdies have become the law of the land. Commerce commenced operations in the legal district of Canton, and taking strolls in the streets of Canton, would do well not to wear in a manner as to attract attention any gold chain, etc., on their person.

Yankee is here, and is talking of erecting a ma-ha-lah for the purpose of amusing the Colestians with his ma-gical tricks.—One of the two contemplated light-houses (vide China Mail of 17th Feb. last.)

It appears there is no objection to the Governor and the British authorities. The Governor is said to have promised that, in the event of the British authorities sanctioning the establishment of a Custom-house at Kowloon, he will follow their example. But now the Senator on a second thought prefers a reference to Lisbon to sanctioning it of his own accord. : It there-lore remains to be seen whether the Chinese Government will administer him some better bribe to swallow. The Government is not in a point of the bayonet, or tremble in their heels, boots at the Governor's solemn pretensions.

The weather-wise folks prognosticated that the present winter would pass away without necessitating that we get in coats, forgetting however that we are in year, in the course of which no extraordinary event need surprise us. The crowds have been called into requisition at the elevators, but I have never been comfortable we may feel, the paddy fields are said to need at this season warmer temperature, in the absence of which more rain is prayed for.—Ganton, 28th March.

TRENTHAM

OUR Tientsin correspondent writes as follows, under date of 12th March:—Two Catholic Missionaries who were lately arrested in Tientsin-hsien by the rebels came to England to-day. They arrived: all the villages they came across in their flight were burnt, as well as all the grain, etc. Some Chinese Catholics, who arrived here yesterday, reported having been dragged to the front of the village of Tientsin, and told to perform to insert my name.—(Sd.) GUERREZ." Why such a request should be made is beyond our comprehension. The writer must have a curious notion of the duties of a correspondent. It is not the duty of an annoying thing to appear in print as a defendant, but the punishment is none of our inflicting. A newspaper has a duty to perform to the public. It is not a se-with the forces under his command, and the Chinese soldiers, nevertheless, for the last three or four days, business has been well, and several transactions have taken place. I noticed this morning on the bund at Shu-chu-fu two European gins close to the Consular Consulate. A great many flags are flying on the water, and the new defense erected by the Shu-chu-fu in 1900 is still in good repair. I think this rebellion will be suppressed in a few days.

will prove a very serious one." The fact of the rebel soldiers as well as their chiefs being branded on the legs shows that they were not taken to the test first, but that they would not put on their bodies a mark which they would not be able to efface in case of capture. _____

TO-DAY'S POLICE. Mrs. Mc-

THE FAIR, OREGON.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE OF G. F. TRAIN.
—Train is about thirty-five or thirty years of age, well built, broad shouldered, with gray and red features, an immense shod of iron-gray hair, slanted curiously as to suggest African blood, sympathetic and graceful gestures, a voice trained in all time, he could send a policeman to arrest her or her constant companion, the clothes officer, and called her names, some of them very abusive names. Why she did so, complainant cannot say. She was sent out almost naked to seek someone to give her something to wear. She was told to go to the laundry and that the damage amounts to the dress was "ought in 'Hingland," so that she could not wear it. Defendant used to go to the laundry and get her clothes.

be very kind to her, and she can give no keep the wind from blowing him over.

doubt the justice of this view of the matter, but what strikes me most is the extreme singularity of the proceedings. Here is a man who claims a right to publish an article in which, amongst other things, he charges the Government with having "done a deed of blood which shall overshadow its name before the whole world," describes the people as having been in former times "deprived of their lands and punished for being poor; deprived of their liberty, and scourged for being serfs," and as having been treated since in the same spirit; changes the judges of the land in a variety of forms with having committed or been privy to a judicial murder, whereby two men and a youth . . . are done to a cruel death; and who also claims a right to publish letters which his own counsel, in order to avoid the necessity of reading them, is obliged to admit to be "mischievous trash and treasonable rubbish." And yet this man has the audacity to come into a court of law before the very judges who, if his own words have in them any truth or sense at all, have been themselves willing instruments in the commission of a judicial murder, and to ask them to go out of their way to punish a brother journalist for having said in substance that it is a breach of the law of England to preach sedition and rebellion, and for having incidentally and by way of illustration suggested that the language used in the master published, the "mischievous trash and treasonable rubbish," was mischievous and treasonable. Is it possible for human impudence to go further? Is there any other country in the world in which it would come into any man's head that it could be a breach of the law to assert that in extreme cases the Governments ought to protect themselves against preachers of sedition by criminal prosecutions and to express an opinion that to charge judges and Governments with "deeds of blood" and to glorify rebellious murderers was preaching sedition? Are there any courts of justice in the world except English courts which are likely to find themselves called upon to defend firmly and mildly the freedom of the press, to insist upon the right and even the duty of journalists to discuss public affairs in a fearless manner, and to do this as against the publisher of what his own representatives describe as "mischievous trash and treasonable rubbish," at a time too when a question is about to be raised before a jury whether the trash and rubbish in question was published as an article of news or as a covert way of expressing the sentiments of the publisher? Certainly if after this Mr. Pigott can make his countrymen believe that they are an oppressed downtrodden race who have been deprived of all their rights and reduced to a condition of slavery, he will be a singularly able advocate.

The whole transaction is rich in lessons of different kinds. It is not so many years since neither the Daily Telegraph nor any other penny paper was or could be in existence. It was supposed at that time, at least it was continually asserted, that if newspapers were published at a penny they would be vehicles for every sort of bad thing, and above all for treasonable and seditious articles. We have now flattered our contemporaries, and, in particular, there are certain features of the Daily Telegraph which are not altogether unconnected with its wide circulation, and which we have always regarded with a mixture of admiration and amusement which we trust has never exceeded the limits either of respect or of good-nature. There is a degree of splendour in its language on all subjects, an air of universal knowledge about its writers and correspondents, a radiant eloquence in its sentiments, which boasts its proud position as the most widely circulated of all English journals. All this may raise more or less of a smile, which any one who pleases may put down to professional rivalry and jealousy; but if we look at the substance of our contemporary's teaching, it would be impossible to imagine anything more utterly unlike what we used to be told the penny press would be. No paper ever was or could be published which believed so intensely in the great fundamental doctrines of "God Save the Queen," and "Rule Britannia," or which has less sympathy with any sort of person who lays his sacrilegious hand on the smallest hair of the tail or whiskers of the British Lion. Those who regard with terror the new Reform Bill and its effects on our institutions must by some strange accident have failed to read the Daily Telegraph. It would be difficult to find anywhere stronger proof of the intense vitality and energy of all the old well-known standard peculiarities of John Bull than is supplied by the fact so pertinaciously, and, we have no reason to doubt, so truly asserted, that it has the largest circulation in the world. So long as this is so, and so long as our friends continue to play the part of the old ass, we shall continue to believe there is still a great deal of John Bull in the average Briton, and that no one who is himself a John Bull need be very much frightened at his "having his head."

M'GEE AND HIS MONKEY.

I danna think that in a nature there's a mair curious creature than a monkey. Folk say that they like the monkey, and they're wrong; they don't like being stung and scratched—I for one will no gang that length. Whatever they may be on the score of mischief, there can be no doubt that, save for as gumption is concerned, they are just uncommon; and for wit and fun they could beat any man black and blue. In fact, I danna think that monkeys are beasts at all. I have a half a notion that they are just like us, or rather that we are just like them, in every way that counts, except in the fact that they are hairy, and we are not. I have a half a notion that they are just like us, or rather that we are just like them, in every way that counts, except in the fact that they are hairy, and we are not. I have a half a notion that they are just like us, or rather that we are just like them, in every way that counts, except in the fact that they are hairy, and we are not.

out free below his kilt, as if he had been my flunkie. It was, after a, a queer sight, and, as may be supposed, I drew a hail crowd of bairns after me, bawling out, "Here's M'Gee's monkey," and going him nuts and gingerbread, and makin' as nuckle of the cratur as could be—for Nossy was a favourite in the town, and everybody liked him for his droll tricks, and the way he used to grin, and dance, and tumble over his head, to amuse them. On entering Mr. Weft's shop, I found it empty; there was a lone, long shadow on the wall, and I supposed he had gone out for a light; and being gey familiar wi' him, I took a step on to the back shop, leaving Nossy in the fore aye. I sat for two or three minutes, but nobody made his appearance. At last the front door, which I had t'en care to shut after me, opened, and I look't to see who it could be, thinking that, no doubt, it was Mr. Weft, or his apprentice. It was neither the one nor the other, but a strong middle-aged, red-headed fellow, with a speck on his nose, and a kilt and a bannet, by a' the world, like my monkey's. Now, what think ye Nossy was about at this time? He was sittin' behind the counter, upon the lang three-legged stool that stood forment Mr. Weft's desk, and was turning over the leaves of his ledger wi' a look which, for auld-fashioned sagaciousness, was wonderfu' to behold. I was aye tickled at the sight that I saw, and I was aye looking at the Heelandsman, but continued looking from the back shop at Nossy, launchin' the time in my sleeve—for I jaded that some queer scene would tak' place between the twa. And I was aye frae wrong, for the stranger, takin' out a pound frae his sponnah, handed it over to the monkey, and speered at him, in his droll noisian deesha, if he could change a note. When I heard this I thought I would have launched out, but, and naething but sheer curiosity to see how the thing would wad maie me keep my gravity. It was plain that Donald had t'en Nossy for one of his ain countrymen—and the thing, after a', wasna greatly to be wondered at, and that for three reasons:—Firstly, the shop was rather darkish. Secondly, the Heelandsman had on spees, as I had just said; and it was likely on this account that he was rather short-sighted; and Thirdly, Nossy, wi' kilt, and bannet, and red coat, was, to a' intents and purposes, as like a human cratur as a monkey could be. Nae sooner, then, had he got the note, than he opened it out, and lookit at it wi' his wee, glowin' restless een, as if to see that it wasna a forgery. He then shook his head as a doctor, when he's no very sure what's wrang wi' a person, but wants to mak' it appear that he kens a' about it, and continued in this style till the Heelandsman's patience began to be tried. "Can ye no shange the note, old shentleman?" quod Donald. Nossy gie'd his head another shake, and lookit uncommon wise. "Is the note no good, sir?" spak the Heelandsman, a second time; but the cratur, instead of answering him, only gie'd another of his wise shakes, as much as to say, "I'm no very sure about it." At this Donald lost temper. "If the note doesna please ye, sir," quod he, "I'll tak' ye to the ga' and back again, and I'll gang to someither place;" and he stretcht out his hand to tak' the hand o' it, when my frie wi' the tail, lifting up his stick, lent him a smack over the fingers as made him pu' back in the twinkling of an e'e. "Got tanna ye, ye auld scoundrel," said the man, "do ye mean to tak' my money frae me?" And he lifted up a rung big enough to fell a stot, and let it fall at the monkey's feet. Nossy was over quick for the money, but he took it, and he looked on a shelf before he could say Jack Robinson. Here he rowed up the note like a baw in his han', and put it into his coat pouch like any rational cratur. Not only this, but he nookit the Heelandsman by a manner o' means—shootin' out his tongue at him, spittin' at him, and grinin' at him wi' his queer outlandish physiognomy. Then he would tak' his tail in his two hands and wag it at Donald, and stretch his noose, he would seem to threaten him wi' a lashin'. At this he was desperate, and impudent enough to try the patience of a saint, no to speak o' a last-bluid Heelandsman. It was guid for sair een to see how Donald behav'd on this occasion. He rag'd like an demonted, miscreant monkey beyond measure, and swearing as he went, and stretchin' his noose, he would seem to threaten him wi' a lashin'. At this he was desperate, and impudent enough to try the patience of a saint, no to speak o' a last-bluid Heelandsman. It was guid for sair een to see how Donald behav'd on this occasion. Mr. Weft, rather snappishly, as I thought, "if ye were the great grand Duke of Argyle himself, as ye call him, I'll no gang you to kick up a dust in my shop." "Ye scoundrel," said Donald, seizin' Mr. Weft by the throat, and shaking him till he tottered like an aspen leaf, "d'ye mean to speak ill of his grace the Duke of Argyle?" and he gie'd him another shake—then, layin' hand o' his noose, he swore he would put it as long as a cow's tail, if he didna that instant restore him his lost property. At this sight I began to grow a' over, and now the necessity of stopping him, and saying my employer, for his damage, bodily and otherwise. Nae sooner had I made my appearance than Donald let go his grip of Mr. Weft's nose, and the latter, in a great passion, cried out, "William M'Gee, I tak' ye witness what I have suffer'd frae this bluid-thirsty Heelandsman! I'll no to be endur'd in a Christian country! I'll have the law of him, that I will! I'll be whuppi'd but I'll have amends although it costs me twenty pounds!" "What's the matter?" quod I, "standin' ignorant of the hail concert?" "What, in the name of Nebuchadnezzar, has set ye together by the lugs?" Then Mr. Weft began his tale, how he had been collared and wad night thrallp'd in his ain shop. Then the other tauld how, in the first place, Mr. Weft's grandfather, as he call'd Nossy, had stolen his note; and how, in the second place, Mr. Weft himself had insulted the great, grand Duke of Argyle. In a word, there was a separate kick-up between the twa, and the thing was, that he would tak' the law of the other immediately. Na, in this respect Donald gue'd the greatest lengths; for he swore that, rather than be defeated, he wad carry his cause to the House of Lords, although it cost him thirty pounds sterling. I now saw it was time to put in a word. "Hout-a-touts, gentlemen," quod I, "what's the use o' this dinnam-claver? I've bairn gettin' the wrong way by the lugs, for my name's no William M'Gee. I'll wagger ye a penny-piece, that my monkey, Nossy, is at the bottom of the business. Nae sooner had I spoken the word, than the twa, looking round the shop, spied the beastie sittin' upon the shelf, grinin' at them, and putting out his tongue, and wiggle-waggin' his wracking stick over his left elbow, as if he had been playin' upon a fiddle. Mr. Weft at this declaration set up a loud laugh; his passion left him in a moment, when he saw the ridiculous mistake that the Heelandsman had fa'en into, and I thought he would have burst his sides with evenmou merriment. At first Donald lookit desperate angry; and judgin' frae the way he was twistin' about his mouth and rowing his een, I opined that he intended some deadly snarl to the monkey. But his guid sense, of which the Heelandsman was no altogether destitute, got the better of his anger and he roared and laughed like the very mischief. Nor was this a' for no sooner had he begun to laugh, than the monkey did the same thing, and held its sides in precisely the same manner, imitatin' his actions, in the most amusing way imaginable. This only set Donald laughin' mair than ever, and when he lifted up his nose, and shook it at Nossy in a gude humour'd way, what the monkey did was to grin at him, and he took the law from his pouch, where it lay roved up like a baw, and pappin' it at Donald, hit him so fairly upon the nose, as if it been shot out of a well-aimed musket. There was na resistin' this. The hail three, or rather the hail four, for Nossy joined us, set up a loud laugh; and the Heelandsman was the loudest of a', showin' that he was really a man o' sense, and could tak' a joke as well as his neighbours. When the laughing had a wee subsided, Mr. Campbell, in order to show that he had nae ill will to Mr. Weft, ax'd his pardon for the rough way he had treated him, but the wordy manufecturer wadna hear o' it. "Hout, man," quod he, "dinna say a word about it. It's a mistake o' thegither, and Solomon himself, ye ken, wadna gae wrang." Whereupon, the Heelandsman bought a Kilt-marmock midlepie, price elevenpence halfpenny; frae Mr. Weft, and paid it, and he took the very note that brought on the fray I have just been relatun'. But his guid will didna end here, for he insisted on takin' us a'—Nossy among the lave—to the nearest public, where he gie'd us a friendly glass, and we kept talkin' about monkeys, and what not, in a manner at once edifyin' and amusin' to hear.

Mr. Weft, rather snappishly, as I thought, "if ye were the great grand Duke of Argyle himself, as ye call him, I'll no gang you to kick up a dust in my shop." Opinions of the Press.

(Singapore Free Press, May 9.)
We referred briefly, several days ago, to a new work published by Messrs. A. Shortt & Co., of Hongkong, entitled, "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan." But it would be utterly impossible, in a condensed notice of such a work, to give an adequate idea of its contents. The historical events of interest since the foundation of the settlement of Hongkong, are perhaps too much condensed into a general summary; but the most important feature in the composition of the society of the present colony, is detailed at greater length. When we come to consider that the book before us makes no pretensions to be a history, but merely a guide book, we cannot hesitate to pronounce it at once the most complete work of its kind ever issued. The Appendix may be termed the China Bradshaw, and the text, teems with interesting particulars—historical, botanical, and descriptive. The maps and plans are useful illustrations of the geographical position of the treaty ports, and a valuable assistance both to travellers and residents.

(N. C. Daily News, May 16.)
A very interesting book has lately been published, entitled, "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan," to which it forms a complete guide, and regarding the history of which it gives interesting particulars. Maps of the various localities described are inserted, and an appendix shows the existing means of transport between Europe and America and these two countries. A work of the kind was much needed, to place within reach of the general public information regarding the districts in which they reside that had hitherto been concealed under the mysterious hieroglyphics of the Chinese language, or at best exposed only to sinologists. The most hope expressed by the authors, that much will be found in the present book that is new and unknown to the general reader, is, we think, fully justified. * * * Hongkong and Canton, for example, each occupy more than 100 pages, comprising every conceivable particular regarding them, from their history native and foreign, to particulars of the geological formation and botanical wealth of the neighbourhood. * * * Not the least interesting feature in the book under review, is the insight it affords us into the character of the population, and the parts of its vast empire. * * * One of the most interesting chapters is devoted to a sketch of the history and topographical features of Formosa. The vicissitudes of its history, the peculiarities of its inhabitants, and the reputed mineral wealth of its hills, afford ample subject for research; and, to a person of Mr. Swinhoe's tastes, must have offered powerful attractions. From his "Notes on Formosa," we derived many of the particulars given in the work under review. * * * Interesting descriptions of the fauna and flora of the island are given, for details of which we refer our readers to the book itself. We have, we believe, said enough to show the scope and character of the work; and must take leave of it for the present, though with the intention of completing our sketch of the information it gives regarding the various treaty ports, on a future occasion. In the meantime, we can assure our readers that no one who takes the trouble to gain a more intimate knowledge of it, will regret the time employed.

From the London Times, May 18.
We feel it to be a public duty to take the first opportunity of calling attention to the "Guide Book and Vade Mecum" just issued for "travellers, merchants, and residents in general," in the Treaty Ports of China and Japan, by Messrs. Shortt & Co., of Hongkong. * * * The order of description of the various places follows their position on, or from the coast, as we go northward. In each instance the history, position, means of access, accommodations, foreign residences, public buildings, community, mode and cost of living, climate, associations, amusements, places of interest, native institutions, population, local government, natural history, productions, and statistics of trade are given, along with a miscellaneous detail of facts and incidents, in connection with particular localities. So far as we are able to practically test the individual descriptions of the various places, they are given, with a considerable degree of fairness and fulness. Peking, Yedo, and Macao are wisely included in the general survey. * * * The value of the book is greatly increased by a most copious index, and the work closes with a set of useful appendices. The last of these is the greatest novelty of the work. It consists of a bibliographical index of all formal works published from the earliest date in the English language on China and Japan. Philologists' books are, for some reason, brought to the compilers, entirely excluded. We hope to see this omission repaired in the next edition. With the exception of the comparative thinness of the paper, the getting-up of the work is very creditable to all concerned; and we have sincere pleasure in congratulating the authors and publishers on the considerable merit of their admirable outlay and performance.

From the Englishman (Calcutta) of June 8.
The celebrated volumes of the French Abbé Hue on China, and Sir Rutherford Alcock's account of Japan are, no doubt, works of a far higher class and more extensive scope than the one now before us; but for practical utility, for all purposes of locomotion, trading and residence in any of the places coming within its compass, "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan," by Messrs. Mayers, Dennis and King, far surpasses them. It is difficult to know under what class of books to place it, for it contains a mixture of history, topography, hygiene, Murray's Hand-book, and Bradshaw's Guide,—all as complete and excellent in their own line as could be expected; and though, perhaps, the book will not prove attractive to students, it is calculated to give a more intimate knowledge of the towns it describes, aided by the excellent maps which accompany it—the work entirely of Chinese—than any of the more elaborated works that have preceded it. * * * We trust we have said enough to show that for any one about to visit, or reside in either of the countries described, this work contains not only most valuable information, but many useful hints.

A very useful book has just been issued from the Press in Hongkong under the title of the "Guide Book and Vade-mecum to the Treaty Ports of China and Japan," compiled and edited by Mr. N. B. Dennis. The Book is very conveniently got up; it is interspersed with maps of the various treaty ports, and contains, besides much useful local information, historical sketches of much interest. Our readers will feel naturally interested in what is said concerning Shanghai; and a good idea of the history of this place is conveyed in Mr. Dennis's work. * * * The other parts in China and also those of Japan are carefully described, and almost all particulars which can be required by the traveller or resident are to be found in this work, which may be justly regarded as the "Murray" of China.

(Foochow Advertiser, May 4, 1867.)
We have received a copy of "Notes and Queries," this publication will be really useful, it contains much matter relating to China which otherwise would be lost, and we wish it every success. Sinologists, Chinese antiquaries and scientific men might especially to congratulate themselves on the appearance of "Notes and Queries," as it will form their medium of communication and bring into notice what otherwise might have lain unknown and buried in themselves. Now that Law and Officialism have got their Gazette, Science and Philology their Notes and Queries, and Missionaries their Recorder, the various divisions of mental labour and work in this land ought to be well taken care of; for our part we are glad to see these several issues, both on account of the information and instruction they afford, and the index they supply to the mental vigour of the foreign community in this land.

Report of North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.
March 1867.
Two periodicals which are likely to be of great service have also been commenced; one is published at Foochow and is called "The Missionary Recorder," and the other emanates from Hongkong and is called "Notes and Queries." It is intended to serve as a medium of intercommunication for persons interested in Chinese Philology, Geography or History. These indications of literary activity are perhaps the most important "sign of the times" has been our province to record, for they are all means to facilitate that mutual understanding one of the other, which seems so hard to establish between Europe and China.

(Foochow Missionary Recorder, April, 1867.)
The two first numbers of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" have been placed on our table. The magazine is every way creditable to its editors and publishers, and we cannot but wish them the utmost success in their efforts to fill an important and hitherto unoccupied place in Eastern literature.

(Shanghai Recorder, May 17, 1867.)
We are put in possession of the fourth number of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan." In saying that the present number equals in interest and importance its predecessors, we have already said a great deal in its favour. Our knowledge of these countries has hitherto been scattered, so ill-arranged, and so unconnected, as to be almost useless. It was, in a series of works, in different languages, and spreading in point of time, over the last two centuries, that some means of separating what is really new, from what has possibly been over and over again described is much to be desired. * * * As a medium of intercommunication on these and many other subjects of interest to those connected with the Far East, we must hail the appearance of "Notes and Queries." * * * We need only add that the periodical is of convenient size, is carefully edited by Mr. N. B. Dennis, and is published at the low price of 54 per annum; and having said this, we trust that "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" will meet with that success which so creditable a production deserves at the hands of those interested in Asiatic researches.

(Hankow Times, Mar. 1867.)
We insert this week, apropos of some pleasant correspondence which has appeared in the late in our columns, an extract from the new publication, "Notes and Queries on China and Japan," on the subject of infanticide, which we particularly recommend to the notice of our contributors as containing some reliable facts in connection with the vexed question. * * * Such a work as the "Notes" is peculiarly adapted for bringing to light valuable information in respect to this country, and its people, language, and institutions, and we trust it will be warmly supported as it deserves by the numerous rising and energetic men, who are now, thanks principally to the philological labours of Mr. Secretary Wado, making rapid advance in the acquisition of the languages to say nothing of the devoted missionaries who have already grown grey in their service to the cause to which they have given themselves.

(San Francisco News Letter, Mar. 23, 1867.)
We have received the first number, which is full of curious, out-of-the-way, and interesting matter.

We have received a copy of "Notes and Queries," this publication will be really useful, it contains much matter relating to China which otherwise would be lost, and we wish it every success. Sinologists, Chinese antiquaries and scientific men might especially to congratulate themselves on the appearance of "Notes and Queries," as it will form their medium of communication and bring into notice what otherwise might have lain unknown and buried in themselves. Now that Law and Officialism have got their Gazette, Science and Philology their Notes and Queries, and Missionaries their Recorder, the various divisions of mental labour and work in this land ought to be well taken care of; for our part we are glad to see these several issues, both on account of the information and instruction they afford, and the index they supply to the mental vigour of the foreign community in this land.

Report of North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.
March 1867.
Two periodicals which are likely to be of great service have also been commenced; one is published at Foochow and is called "The Missionary Recorder," and the other emanates from Hongkong and is called "Notes and Queries." It is intended to serve as a medium of intercommunication for persons interested in Chinese Philology, Geography or History. These indications of literary activity are perhaps the most important "sign of the times" has been our province to record, for they are all means to facilitate that mutual understanding one of the other, which seems so hard to establish between Europe and China.

(Foochow Missionary Recorder, April, 1867.)
The two first numbers of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" have been placed on our table. The magazine is every way creditable to its editors and publishers, and we cannot but wish them the utmost success in their efforts to fill an important and hitherto unoccupied place in Eastern literature.

(Shanghai Recorder, May 17, 1867.)
We are put in possession of the fourth number of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan." In saying that the present number equals in interest and importance its predecessors, we have already said a great deal in its favour. Our knowledge of these countries has hitherto been scattered, so ill-arranged, and so unconnected, as to be almost useless. It was, in a series of works, in different languages, and spreading in point of time, over the last two centuries, that some means of separating what is really new, from what has possibly been over and over again described is much to be desired. * * * As a medium of intercommunication on these and many other subjects of interest to those connected with the Far East, we must hail the appearance of "Notes and Queries." * * * We need only add that the periodical is of convenient size, is carefully edited by Mr. N. B. Dennis, and is published at the low price of 54 per annum; and having said this, we trust that "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" will meet with that success which so creditable a production deserves at the hands of those interested in Asiatic researches.

(Hankow Times, Mar. 1867.)
We insert this week, apropos of some pleasant correspondence which has appeared in the late in our columns, an extract from the new publication, "Notes and Queries on China and Japan," on the subject of infanticide, which we particularly recommend to the notice of our contributors as containing some reliable facts in connection with the vexed question. * * * Such a work as the "Notes" is peculiarly adapted for bringing to light valuable information in respect to this country, and its people, language, and institutions, and we trust it will be warmly supported as it deserves by the numerous rising and energetic men, who are now, thanks principally to the philological labours of Mr. Secretary Wado, making rapid advance in the acquisition of the languages to say nothing of the devoted missionaries who have already grown grey in their service to the cause to which they have given themselves.

(San Francisco News Letter, Mar. 23, 1867.)
We have received the first number, which is full of curious, out-of-the-way, and interesting matter.
